Forest Fires

IT IS time for us to leave—to leave after two years of working with and for our Alma Mater. Our Alma Mater, who has unselfishly given us all that we, as individuals, have asked of her—who has cleared pathways into a number of fruitful forests in such a way that in case we should go on with her work, we should be spared the anxieties of a beginning. She has given us the sacrament of friendship with fellow-classmates. She has given us problems which challenged our initiative, intelligence, courage, and perseverance. She has even given us a new life within these last two years. But most precious of all gifts, she has given us memories—a jewel box, in which rests a diamond for the joys, a pearl for the happiness, an onyx for the little anxieties, and an audacious crystal for the fun during the time we spent with her.

And what has she asked in payment? That depends on each one of us and what we render in return. God grant that we give in the same proportion that she has conferred benefit on us.

To Miss Tall
in Dedication

A parting of the ways
And we face East, alone, to meet the sun.

Together you and we have toiled,
Plotting our course—
Clearing our path through the underbrush.
Together we have met with sudden beauty
That held us inarticulate in a white instant, removed from time.
After labor we have supped, and laughed and sung together
By the fire.
And now, a parting of the ways
And we alone face eastward to the sun.

O may you often come to look out to the great beyond, where we have gone,
To think of us.
And may the flowers of memory we leave behind us at the parting of the ways
Wake into bloom and fragrance at your coming.
In tribute.

History of The Maryland State Normal School

MARYLAND was the seventh State to make any move toward the education of trained teachers. The Act of 1865, providing a uniform System of Free Public Schools for the State of Maryland, made it one of the duties of the State Board of Education to organize a State Normal School for the instruction and practice of teachers of Public Schools in the Science of Education and the Art of Teaching and Mode of Governing Schools.

There was great delay in opening the school due to the difficulty of procuring rooms. However, Dr. M. A. Newell was elected principal of the school and he after having visited institutions for the education of teachers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Connecticut, devised a systematic plan of operation, a complete curriculum for Normal School and the model and experimental school.

The school was not opened until the 15th of January, 1866. It was located in Red Man's Hall, Paca Street near Fayette (incidentally one of the noisiest sections of the city). Although the school had opened with only eleven students, the number steadily increased until at the close of the season, June 8, there were forty-eight names on the roll. There was good reason to believe that the school would reopen in September with largely increased numbers.

At this time, each county was entitled to send to the Normal School, two students for each member of the House of Delegates and one for each Senator, thus making a total of 184 county students.

Persons desiring to enter the school were instructed to apply to the School Commissioners of his or her county. Female applicants had to be sixteen years of age; male applicants, seventeen; and had to give evidence of good moral character and fair elementary education. If the quota for that county was filled, the candidate had to apply to the State Superintendent, accompanying his application with a recommendation from his County Board of School Commissioners.

Those candidates who pledged themselves to teach in the Public Schools of Maryland had nothing to pay for tuition or books. A limited number of students would be received without such a pledge on paying $25 a session and furnishing their own books. Boarding was to be had in the city at from four to five dollars a week.

There were both Academic and Professional courses of instruction. The junior class, in preparation for work that was to follow, was given a review of all elementary subjects—spelling, reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, algebra, rhetoric, English literature, and natural science. Special attention was given to drawing, vocal music, calisthenics and to Introduction into Primary and Grammar Grades.

The subjects embraced in the Professional courses were History of Public Schools and Popular Education, the Philosophy of Mind, Education as a Positive Science, Teaching as an Art, Methods of Instruction, Classification, Government and Discipline, the School Law of Maryland in relation to citizens, teachers and school officers, duties and qualification of Public School Teachers.

A beginning of a library had been made, with expectations of additions each year.

It is interesting to note the names of students of M. S. N. S. at the time of Mr. Newell's administration with those of today. A few are: Maggie Lawrence, Sallie Gamble, Lizzie Spedlen, Fannie Markland, and Angie Downs.

During this first administration, the location of the school was changed twice. In 1872, the school was established in the Athenaeum Club, Charles and Franklin, and in 1876, was changed to its third location, Lafayette and Carrollton Avenues, where it remained until 1915 when the school was moved out to Towson.

Following Mr. Newell's administration, came E. B. Prettyman (1890-1905) and G. W. Ward (1905-1909). These two men continued the work with its ideals begun by Mr. Newell.

During Miss Sarah E. Richmond's administration (1907-1917) the Maryland State Normal School changed both its home and its curriculum. The General Assembly of Maryland at the session of 1912, passed an act authorizing the issuing of a loan of $600,000 for the purchase of land and the erection and construction of a building, including dormitories, for the School.

The buildings, which are beautifully located on the high ground on the west side of the York Road at Towson, Baltimore County, cost more than $700,000 and occupy a portion of a site of 88 acres which was purchased at a cost of $83,735.

Two courses were offered: the professional and the academic. The professional course of study in the Junior year consisted of Pedagogy, Psychology, Art of Teaching, Review of Grammar, History, Observation in the Model School, English, History of English Literature, Studies in English Literature, History and Civil Government, Science, Physics, Biology, Art, Drawing, Vocal Music, Vocal Expression, Manual Training and Physical Training.

The second year of the professional course offered: Pedagogy, Psychology, Principles of Teaching, School Management and Law, History of Education, Review of Geography, Arithmetic, English, Practice Teaching, Science, Nature Study, History including the Constitution of the U. S. and Maryland, Art, Vocal Music, Vocal Expression and Physical Training.

The Academic Department offered in its course of study for Juniors: English, Composition and Rhetoric, History, both Ancient and Medieval, Mathematics, Algebra, Science, Physical Geography, Botany, Latin, Art, Drawing, Vocal Music, Vocal Expression, Manual Training, and Physical Training.

In 1918, Dr. Henry S. West, who came here to Maryland, his home state, after an interesting period of teaching at the University of Cincinnati, developed supervision of the boarding students.

A new note in the history of the school was reached in September, 1921, under Miss Tall's administration, when the school accepted only graduates from an approved high school thereby eliminating the teaching of high school work at the Normal School and cutting the course down to two years. Later in 1927, the Legislature passed a bill requiring that all applicants to State-aided institutions in Maryland must secure the recommendation of high school principals, and still later in 1929 a law was passed admitting in full standing only high school students who had received 60% A and B grades in the last two years of high school, with 40% C grades.

A Way of Life

THIS edition of the CRYSTAL, edited by the last two-year diploma group of students that the Towson Normal School will ever have, marks a milestone in the history of education in our State. What message can I give that will be full of meaning for every member of the Class of 1932 as well as for our Alumni?

I turn to Washington's life for my text. Owen Wister, after analyzing George Washington, the subject of his charming book, "The Seven Ages of Washington," attributes his greatness to three tremendous influences: First of all, Washington's own desire which apparently was evidenced very early, to develop a fine character; second, the friendship and opportunities that the very able Lord Fairfax gave to him; and third, his own friendship for Alexander Hamilton, the twenty-year-old young man whom Washington, a mature man, recognized as a genius when he first met him during the Revolutionary War. It would be truly remarkable if the body cells of each one of us were set up through our biological inheritance so that seeking for character might become a ruling passion in our lives. It would be a marvelous gift from the many chances life holds out for us if the friendship of an older person, such as Lord Fairfax's was for Washington, should set us straight by giving us opportunities and guiding our ambitions. It would be a tremendous advantage to us if we have gained the capacity for offering friendship to persons younger than ourselves when values in the younger boy or girl are recognized.

Have you a capacity for friendship? Have you a capacity for appreciating the valuable experience of your elders? Above all else, do you really desire character and culture?

George Washington had many ideals that we might well desire for ourselves. He was very impatient of cheating of any kind or of a refusal of an employee to do a decent day's work. He kept his accounts most accurately and methodically. He was neat in his dress and appearance but never wasted too many precious moments upon his toilet, so that he never became a fop. He regarded Time not as a Gift but as a Loan, for which he must account to the Great Master. Of himself he said "I never say anything of a man that I have the smallest scruple of saying to him." Halsted Ritter, in his recent book, "Washington as a Business Man," pays this tribute to Washington's intelligent sense of business: "There is an honor in business that is the fine gold of it; that reckons with every man justly; that loves light; that regards kindness and fairness more highly than goods or profits. It becomes a man more than his furnishings or his house. It speaks for him in the heart of everyone. His friendships are serene and secure. His strength is like a young tree by a river."

Some of us have known almost from our childhood how to proceed and develop; some of us have had to grow by hard knocks and sad experiences; but all of us grow only in the right direction according to the principles that guide our lives. Washington could define his principles; he was fortunate in this. Can you define yours?

Alma Mater

Alma Mater, Alma Mater,
We will ever faithful be;
In our hearts thy beauty lingers,
Though we've gone from thee.

Chorus;

Now thy praises we are chanting,
Now our voices rise in tune;
Sing thy beauty, Alma Mater,
And our love so true.

Sparkling in the morning brightness,
Rosy in the sunset light,
Stately rising on the hilltop,
Ever our delight.

"Before Us Lies The Timber. Let Us Build"

THIS motto, adopted as the guiding principle of the class that entered the Maryland State Normal School in the fall of 1930, breathes a lefty purpose and has been an inspiration to students and adviser alike. A severe pruning of the class the first term of work together lopped off considerable dead wood and left an organism that was stronger and healthier than before. For a class is an organic structure and its members either contribute to its well-being or injure it "even unto death." A class whose members do not share a common purpose with one another and with their Alma Mater is a dead class.

The class of '32 is decidedly alive! Very early, it assimilated its members into a unified being and its motto shows its determination not only to live but to grow and to accomplish!

"Let us Build" implies creative effort! Vision and labor both are needed in the making of a structure in which you can take pride. "Before Us Lies the Timber," says the motto. What is the material with which everyone is supplied? It is yourselves! Is it good material? Far better than you may realize today. Because it is living, it can change and be made ever finer.

During two years of interesting association with the class of '32 and of '33, I have seen delightful and heartening transformations take place. A very few individuals have not yet discovered and developed their best selves, but I am trusting that the new life into which all will be plunged after graduation will stimulate growth even more than has the Normal School at Towson. For new timber will be placed in the hands of those who teach. Each year, perhaps, a new consignment of eager, pulsing human timber will be your working material. The thought is thrilling, for it means power! It also means responsibility!

My wish for you is that all may become master-builders, dreaming fine dreams and by your labor changing these dreams into splendid realities.

MINNIE V. MEDWEDFFF

Farewell Message

TO SOME people, June, 1932, will mean just the beginning of another summer; to some it will mean just the ending of another school year; but to us, the members of the class of 1932 at Normal, it will have a more definite meaning, a more outstanding one.

It has been two years since we came to Normal, elected officers, chose our class colors and motto, and met our faculty advisor. Many things have happened during these two years which have made us much richer for the experience.

Through the guidance of the faculty our lives have been enriched threefold. We have gained knowledge which will serve as the background for our teaching; we have made social contacts which will carry on for many years; and we have gained through study, observation and experience an enthusiastic attitude toward our profession. The benefits of our work during these two years will surely serve us for the rest of our lives.

As a whole, the best things the class has been able to do have come as a result of the combined efforts of resident and day students. If at no other time in our life we have seen the necessity of cooperation we were shown it here.

Henceforth we are teachers. May our colors, red and white, fashion our ideals; red for beauty (beauty of thought and aspiration), and white for virtue (the virtue of being a good teacher). May our aim and motto continue to be the building of real citizens from crude timber. May success and happiness crown our efforts.

When we part from Normal School let us think of it only as a short departure. When you shake hands with your classmates just say, "So long ———; I'll be sein' you."

Class Song

Work and play and pleasure
Make our days a treasure
At our dear old Normal School;
Learning is our master,
Teachin' will come after
Alma Mater, lead us on.

Chorus

Red and white our colors we will fly,
Red, red rose does our flower signify,
Before us lies the timber, let us build, not hinder,
Rah! for the Class of '32.

Hearts and souls invest
To make this world the best
With standards reaching for the sky.
Fame and fortune reap
In climbing for this peak
With perseverance we shall win.

Tabloid Tests My Teacher Tries

WHAT IS A TEACHER?

She may be anywhere from twenty to seventy years young.

She sleeps with her window open and teaches with her mouth shut.

She knows her subject thoroughly, tells it cautiously. She listens eloquently.

She knows ships and shoes and sealing wax and cabbages and kings.

She can walk a league, drive a Packard, caress an angle worm, bind a wound or darn a sock.

She can bake a loaf, quote a sonnet, judge a Rembrandt and tell the stars.

She reads The U. S. Daily, The Literary Digest, Good Housekeeping, Atlantic Monthly, The Psychological Clinic, The Living Age, and The Baltimore Sun.

She has visited Mrs. Harry, consulted Mrs. Smith, debated with Mrs. James and dined with Mrs. Brown.

She plans with the strategy of a Foch and executes with the energy of a Lindbergh.

She is an educator par excellence.

IF

If it takes a Fifty Thousand Dollar Man

To guide a client
To direct a government
To reorganize a corporation

What is the Teacher worth

Who takes a child of yours
Who guides him
Who gives him a goal
Who makes a man of him?

Potential Power For Dynamic Action Lies Within You

HISTORY marks with intense interest the passage of groups of people through life, for they vitally affect world affairs. Attention centers especially upon their leaders who are diligent students of life.

Diverse fields for exploratory effort are ever open for the strong leaders. Here, they may study the vast unknown expanse of infinity, or there, they may delve into the mysteries of the immeasurably small; while between these extremes, the gigantic evolutionary mass of the known world moves on with you as a single pulsing item of life. Though you are material substance living with individual action, yet you are in unison and harmony with the whole.

Potential power for dynamic action lies within you. You are awake to your vital need for thinking logically of your life. You are able to weigh with deep insight the consequences of your actions and to plan with conscious effort for the liberation of your thought and action. Education has planned your contacts so that the Light of Wisdom is permeating your thought and matter.

May the Spirit of the Known and Unknown lead you on into a brilliant understanding of the wonders of life so that you will be unified and merged into a oneness with Real Culture and the Dynamic Growth of the Universe, and become Leaders among Leaders.

PAULINE RUTLEDGE

A MAJESTIC redwood—a profusion of fringed gentians—massive gnarled roots of virgin forests. This is growth. The WORLD marvels and appreciates the propensities of all of these.

But there is another growth, quiet, deep, all absorbing which can give ONE the power to discover depths. It is rare. But those who have it can see the rainbow when it is not there. They can hear sounds in the air when there are no wires to carry them. They can hear the music of the great silence of the snow. They can see, feel, and hear the uncommon in that which seems most common to us.

Life is full of common work, common things, common men. If one is to live intelligently and happily it is necessary to understand, appreciate, and love the commonplace. This can only be done if one visualizes the uncommon aspects of the common things. This is not easy. It is desperately hard. It is not new. It is ages old. It has been done by all those who have been really successful. It requires thought. It requires patience. It requires planning. It requires perseverance. It requires courage. IT MEANS SOLITUDE. But if in the end one can see the Law of Gravity in the falling apple, or see and feel the Madonna in a dwarfed, square-toed, thick, little peasant body,—or feel and hear the Voice of God in a Burning Bush—one has grown, one has achieved, one has lived.

To The Freshmen

AS FRESHMEN, our ideals are no higher than the classes that have preceded us, but our attitude toward those ideals can make us an outstanding class to be remembered.

To be remembered as a class depends upon the individuals in that class. Ideals and attitudes can be attained only by the individuals who feel the necessity of abiding by the standards of the schools or raising them to a higher level.

I believe that a great difficulty lies in the shifting of advice, intended for us, to the other fellow. Such an attitude is common to all of us because we all have some false pride in us. Until we become broadminded enough to accept and see the advice in relation to our situations, little progress can be made.

To improve our own standard, think about advice that we would give our friends and fellow students, and apply the same to ourselves, for it is the unselfish, helpful attitude that will be our greatest asset in attaining the aims that have been set before us.

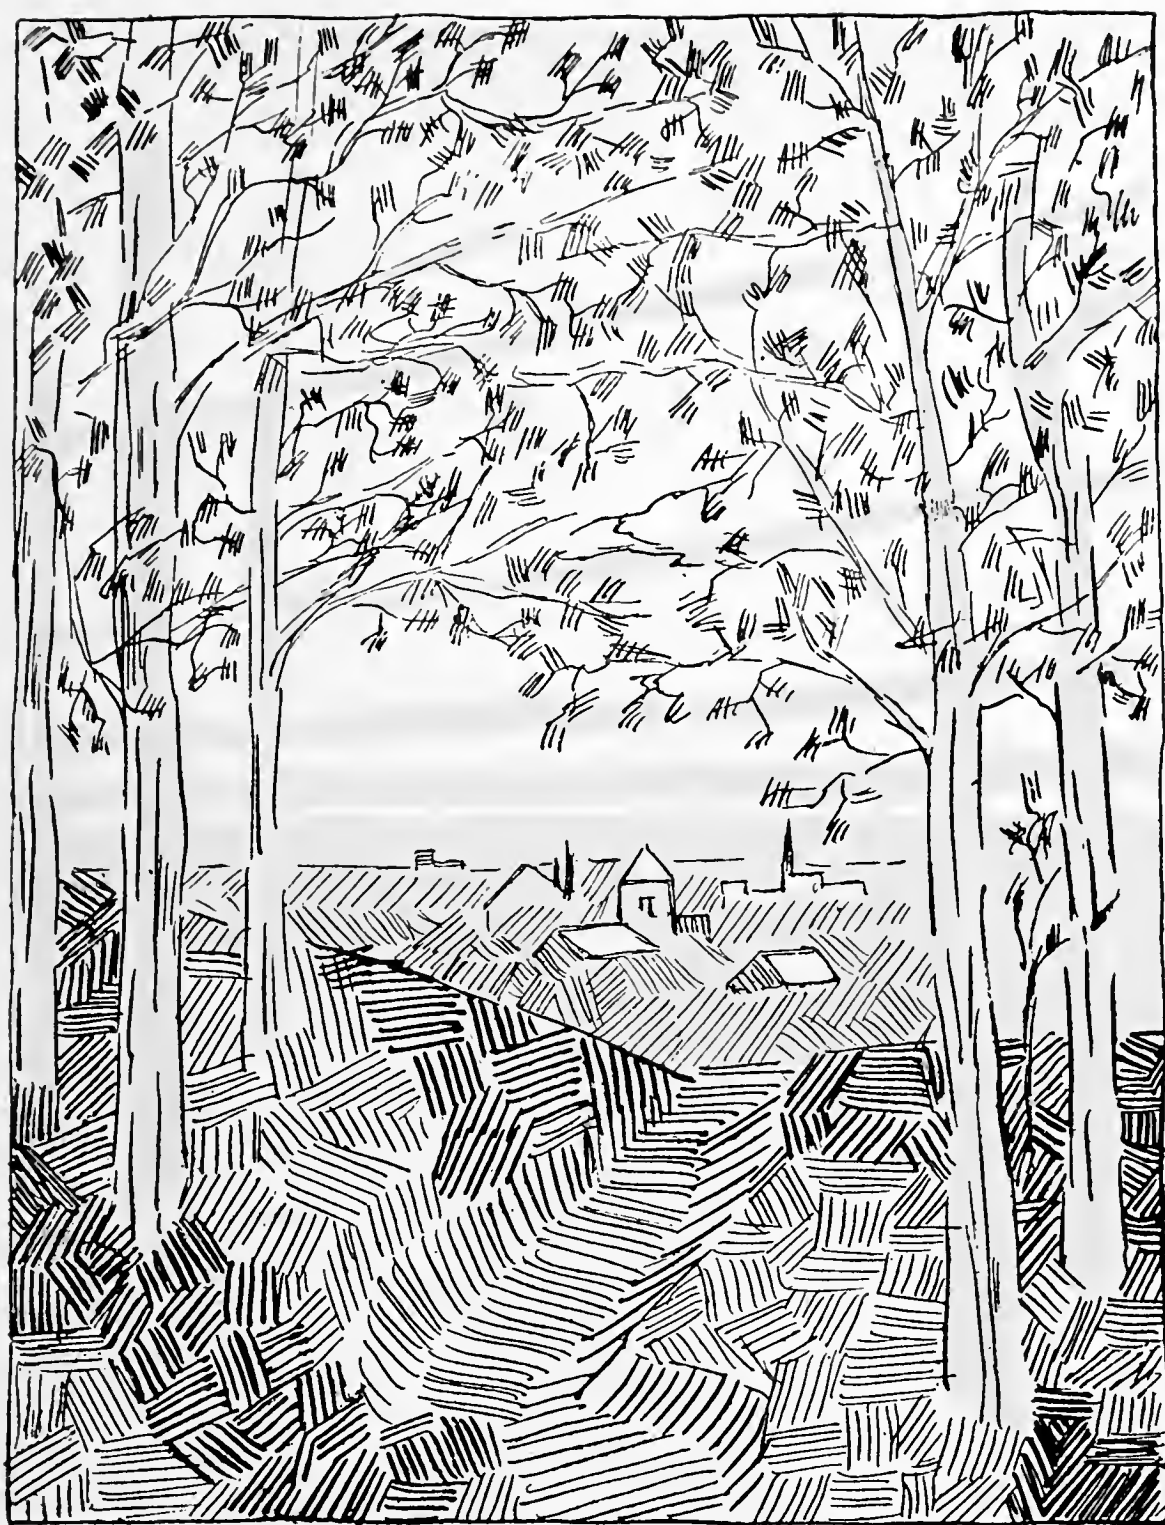

Let us bear in mind that the school and its requirements come first, and that the spirit of the class is to permit an attitude whereby it may build on these requirements and thus make a stronger foundation for the future.

THE TOWER LIGHT embodies the composite personality of the school. Our tastes, ideals, problems, and activities merge into a varying expression,—our voice, color, form. We grow,—we change. Just as light is caught and reflected by each of the sides of a diamond, so our magazine, a many-pointed prism, holds, and gives forth the light from the fire we kindle.

The Student Council

A STUDENT COUNCIL, like anything else, has to grow as a result of experience. The Student Council of the Maryland State Normal School is comparatively young and has therefore been building its foundation. Now that its foundation has become somewhat steady it is growing through the experiences which built that foundation.

One of the aims of the Student Council, for the past two years, has been to try an honor system in the school. Whether it will be successful or not remains to be seen. Whatever may be its fate, there is at least this satisfaction; the honor system as it now stands has been given due consideration and thoughtful discussion—it has neither been accepted nor discarded.

Perhaps the greatest accomplishment of this year is the realization that the three councils—the General, Day, and Resident—should not work in three distinct groups but as one. The Student Council should have some connection with all clubs and organizations in the school so that the school will be unified and will be one big working unit.

THE GLEE CLUB has an enrollment this year of more than one hundred members—twenty boys and eighty-five girls. Membership in the club is voluntary, any student who successfully passes a tryout with the director being eligible. The purpose of the Glee Club is two-fold: first, to bring together those who love and appreciate music, in order to further their own musical education; second, to provide pleasure and enjoyment for the members, as well as for those who hear our programs.

Meetings are held every Monday afternoon under the direction of Miss Weyforth. But we do not think always of work. We have had several social functions, such as the picnic supper in the Glen and the "taffy pull."

The most important programs of the Glee Club thus far have been the entertainment for the Mothers of the Freshmen, the Christmas Community Singing, the Normal School Christmas Program, and the Old English Dinner. In addition, we expect to broadcast, and to participate in the Washington Bicentennial Celebration, the Baccalaureate Services, and the Commencement.

The Honor Society

THE Chi Alpha Sigma Fraternity is the Honor Society of the Maryland State Normal School at Towson. Those who make the high scholastic record required and in addition make a definite contribution to the student-life of the school are eligible to membership. This insures an organization of all-around strong personalities.

Those enrolled in the society have been outstanding members of the student body. Many have excelled as student leaders in student councils, class or extra-curricular organizations. Many have shown one or more special abilities in music, art, dramatics, athletics or in literary achievement. All candidates must be successful student-teachers. All have high standards of personal conduct.

Members of the Chi Alpha Sigma Fraternity are an asset to the school. They do not shirk responsibility. They stand for activities and standards of which the school can be proud. They should make highly successful careers for themselves in the years to come.

The Marshals

THE marshals comprise one of the oldest and busiest organizations in the Normal School. Each spring the new members are chosen, and they become familiar with their duties under the guidance of the acting marshals. Their duties include such tasks as seating arrangements for assembly programs; light and ventilation in the auditorium; and acting as ushers for entertainments and for commencement exercises.

Promptly at eight-thirty every Friday morning, the organization meets to discuss the work of the previous week and to suggest plans for improvement. Miss Van Bibber, the faculty adviser, assists and guides the marshals in their work, and has given invaluable aid on many occasions.

League of Young Voters

THE League of Young Voters was organized a number of years ago at the time when the parent body, The National League of Women Voters, decided to carry the movement of the political education of women into Normal Schools and colleges. Our chapter was the first organized in Maryland.

The aims of the League are "to acquaint future voters with the problems and issues of the day, to give social contacts to its members, and to furnish them with experience in parliamentary procedure."

Our League holds delightful social meetings bi-monthly, and these are frequently addressed by interesting outside speakers, and at other times conducted by the students themselves.

THE purpose of the Mummers' League of the Maryland State Normal School is to provide pleasure and the opportunity for self-expression through the field of dramatics. During the year of '32 the Mummers have presented "Poor Madelena"—a delightful fantasy and a suitable introduction for our year's program. The presentation of "The Valiant," marked the climax of this year's productions. The cast of this tragedy was as follows: The Valiant, Henry Kitt; Josephine Paris, Doris Elliott; Father Daly, Bob Norris; Warden Holt, Leonard Hirschorn; Attendant, Solomon Liss.

These people presented an excellent drama under the able guidance of their student-director, Miss Ruth Bonnert. We are looking forward to quite as successful a production in the presentation of "Society News," an extremely modern play under the direction of Miss Mindell Kaufman.

We feel that this year the League has not only lived up to its traditional ideals, but has set new and higher ones. The coaching has been almost completely in the hands of club members. This ability to assume leadership and responsibility shows a marked advance in the growth of the club.

Besides Mrs. Stapleton, it has added as advisers Miss Neunsinger and Miss Orcutt. Both of the new advisers have given the club interesting talks and Miss Neunsinger has contributed most valuable advice and leadership in matters pertaining to stage craft.

The departing seniors wish the League a most happy and successful future.

THE purpose of this organization is to promote and develop an interest in the community activities that are typical of those in which teachers of the state are expected to engage.

Our major interest for the year has been the topic of conservation as related to the development of the Glen of the campus. Members of the club and outside speakers have used this topic for discussion.

Meetings are held twice a month. The social events of the year included an oyster roast, a visit to Sachem Rock, a Christmas Fireside Hour, and a get-together dinner.

THE Y. W. C. A. is an important factor in the life at Normal. Its members conduct Vesper Services each Sunday evening and Chapel Services on Wednesday morning throughout the year. It sponsors the "Big Brother and Sister" movement to help the incoming Freshmen adjust themselves to a new school life. Much effort is made to secure success through the annual Bazaar which is held in November. In the spring a large picnic is held for the enjoyment of its members.

The interest that has been shown this year has developed a feeling of closer fellowship in living together at Normal.

Y. W. C. A. Choir

THE Y. W. C. A. Choir has a dual value. It is of value to the association in leading the singing at the Sunday evening vespers and rendering special numbers of sacred music there. Its black and white vestments lend dignity and church-like atmosphere to the service. It is of value to the members of the choir in giving further musical training under the guidance of Miss Prickett and providing an opportunity for participation in some religious activity in the school. It develops in each individual a sincere pleasure in voluntary service. May the choir continue to serve in these two ways throughout the coming years.

THE Daubers invite all those that are in any way interested in art. It is not the purpose of the club to single out talent, rather in endeavors to provide stimulating enjoyment. The art club offers opportunity for work in clay modeling, oil and water color painting, printing, and in fact any phase of art which might appeal to one. The meetings are held the second Wednesday of every month and are under the supervision of Miss Neunsinger and Mrs. Brouwer.

Girl Scouts

"SCOUT around for the Girl Scout table." These were the first words said about this new organization at Nermal School. Thirty-two of us found the table and enrolled in the troupe to find a new faculty member as our adviser; namely, Miss Byerly. Yes, and a worthy adviser she has been, too. Miss Lider, the Baltimore local leader, gave the troupe a leader's training course which instructed us as to the method of organizing and conducting a new Scout Troupe. Those who completed the course, realize the benefits of a teacher's close contact with her pupils.

As with any new organization we hope that the Girl Scouts will increase both in numbers and cooperation with other clubs in the school.

Athletic Association Review

AS WE look back into the diary of the Athletic Board, we realize more than ever that it is an organization worthy of the school. All work and no play makes Jack a dull "Normalite," so the Athletic Association provides the play. In the winter, hockey entices the girls to forget the cold long enough to have a good game, and later on, basketball comes to the fore. The season ends appropriately with competitive games between the Seniors and Freshies—the victor being the class winning two out of three games. The boys too enjoy winter sports. Instead of inter-class soccer and basketball games, they have the extra excitement of playing out-of-town schools.

Of course, when Spring rolls around, we have to be outdoors, so naturally there are games played on the campus. A number of students come out for baseball, and volley ball is also popular. Besides these seasonal sports, many go swimming and hiking the year 'round.

There are some special occasions sponsored by the Athletic Association. Every year a Demonstration night is held and the Seniors and Freshies try to outdo each other in originality, stunts, cheers, games, and dances. Judges sit by and decide which class has been the superior of the two.

Because Normal has been made into a three-year school, the Athletic Board has made a new arrangement for gaining awards. The Board expects to make other progressive moves before this year closes.

Without good leadership, no organization can be a success. The Athletic Association is indebted to Miss Daniels, Miss Roach and Mr. Minnegan for its good work.

1932 CRYSTAL

The new course of study for the Juniors included Biology, Hygiene, Educational Psychology, Introduction to Teaching, Fine Arts, Geography, History, Household Economics, Industrial Arts, Mathematics, Music, and Physical Education.

To the Seniors were offered: Biology, Hygiene, Principles of Education, History of Education, Educational Measurements, School Management, Student Teaching, Rural Sociology, English, Fine Arts, Geography, History, Civics, Household Economics and Industrial Arts.

The year 1931 marked another milestone in the history of the Normal School, for at this time, the course was extended another year making three years necessary for a diploma. In addition to the courses mentioned above, the Juniors are offered valuable orientation or World Today courses in Music, Art, Literature, Geography, and History.

The growth of the school since 1866 has been remarkable. The enrollment has greatly increased. The school has a recognized position among the educational institutions of the country, but the aims and doctrines of that first administration still remain as Mr. Newell phrased them:

"The science of education is still in its infancy. The faculty of the Normal School disclaims all intention of making teachers to order, of pronouncing in every instance which is the right way of teaching every subject, or of deciding in every instance which is the proper method of dealing with all the practical difficulties of the school room—Their aim is not to convert their students into pedants and martinets—but to call into the liveliest exercise the peculiar talents of every individual and to bring these talents under the direction of a sound Philosophy to bear upon the work of the Teacher—They earnestly endeavor to impress upon their students that the cultivation of the intellectual powers is only part of a teacher's work. The physical well-being of the scholar is entrusted to the teacher during school hours, and as far as he can control it, after school hours; and the laws of health are as necessary to be taught as the laws of Grammar. The conscience needs the guiding hand of the teacher as well as the reason; the duties of the child to society, to his country, and his God, need to be explained and enforced, as well as his duties to his teachers and his parents."
